Supreme Court Judges.

The Judges of the United States Supreme Court—what a jolly old set. There was the Chief Justice, with iron-gray hair, thick and stiff, and whiskers just the same, a big nose and a big mouth, wrapped in his black silk gown, but looking very like a Chief Justice. But he attends to his business, leaves politics to the dogs, and is respected by his associates. On his right, oldest in commission of any one on the bench, is Justice Miller, round and fat, and sixty-four, a little bald and closely-shaven face. On the bench he is as cross as a batchet, for he hates circumlocution and shams (and half the bar is made up of them); but off the bench he is as jolly, and kind, and gentle as any man you ever saw. He has been regarded for ten years as the ablest man on the bench. The three last appointments on the bench may change this, but I doubt it.

On the Chief Justice's left is Justice Field, appointed as a Republican, but now a Democrat. He is tall, bald-headed, spectacled, full-bearded, with a Jewish cast of countenance. Smart he is, too, as all the Fields are. He writes strong opinions, and is popular. He is a most entertaining companion and a great traveler and scholar. Drink? Yes, once in a while. Miller and Field, respectively, are the two oldest Judges in commission on the bench. Justice Bradley is the next in point of rank—thin, refined, close-shaven, gray haired, judicial-looking old gentleman, who doesn't seem to have much to say to any one. Justice Harlan, fourth in rank (excepting, of course, the Chief Justice), is a specimen Kentuckian—a giant in his way. Big body, big head, big hands, big feet, long legs, long arms, and long-headed, without a doubt. He is at least six feet six inches in height. He rents a furnished house from a friend of mine, and my friend has to have made especially for the great Kentuckian, a nine-foot bedstead, with mattresses, blankets, sheets, etc., to correspond, and also one for the son of the Judge, who is as tall. Judge Harlan was a strong acquisition to the bench, and is popular on the bench and off. Chew tobacco, did you say? Well, I should think so, and he knows a glass of Bourbon when he tastes it. There is not much known of Justice Woods. He is a grizzly, slouching man, whose personal bearing and appearance are not at all striking. He is a Judge by appointment, but he doesn't look like one. Justice Stanley Matthews is built on a big model, physically and mentally. As an intellectual force he scarcely has a superior on the bench. He is quiet in his intercourse, and does not seem to care to extend his acquaintance. Justice Gray is a tall, white-headed, peppery old bachelor, who snaps up everybody, and had rather quarrel than win a cause. When he first came on the bench here he was nearly killed with heavy eating and drinking, but that time is over. As the old Judges are very tenacious of the rights of seniors, he is not likely to be popular. Justice Blatchford, the last appointment, looks like George W. Childs, and is, therefore, clean, genial, affable, well dressed, and kindly natured—else looks do not count.—Philadelphia Press.

The Art of Mezzotint.

These attempts at revising the art of mezzotint as employed upon original work have a special interest besides that which attaches to them as experiments so far successful and promising to be still more so. They show the desire to cultivate a very beautiful and refined style in which English artists, inspired as they were by the beautiful pictures of Reynolds and Gainsborough, more than a hundred years ago, arrived at the highest perfection. That the method should ever have been suffered to fall into disuse, and be supplanted by the more mechanical and less artistic work produced in various forms by various tools used to cut into the plate in a more or less stiff and unpliant manner, is much to be regretted. It is essentially a painter's method, more pictorial than any other, and broader in treatment, and one, therefore, that enables the artist to give full expression to his feeling for the beauties of light and shade and every charm of gradation and suggested color possible to a monochrome.

Butterine.

The subject of food adulteration opens up an infinite field of discussion, and there is much to be said for and against it. The butterine factory in this city, which has just declared a dividend of 10 per cent., reveals the fact that an extensive business has been carried on the past year in the manufacture and sale of an imitation of butter; but while butterine can not be called an adulterated article of food, nevertheless there can be no doubt that thousands of people are daily buying the article under the impression that it is genuine butter. And in this connection we will say that from practical knowledge of the mode of manufacture, we would infinitely prefer oleomargarine to rancid butter, and will readily concede its superior healthfulness; and yet the business—although the company sells its product as butterine—supplies the retailer with means of deception, and practically results in giving to the consumer, perhaps in a majority of instances, that which he did not buy.—New Orleans Sugar Planter.

Sporting in Turkish Asia.

A party of English gentlemen crossed the Sea of Marmora and landed about forty miles from this city to hunt for game. They became separated in the course of the hunt, and one of the party, Commander Selby, of the English Navy, was accosted by a shepherd. The Englishman did not know Turkish, and thought that the shepherd wanted to beg some powder. So he remarked that he had no powder, and opened his cartridge-box to show that his ammunition was all in that form. But the shepherd had asked that no guns be fired near the sheep, and understood the exhibition of cartridges to be equivalent to a threat of violence. So he struck the Englishman over the head with his stick, and a struggle ensued. Commander Grenville, also of the English Navy, then came up and more shepherds appeared. The result was that Commander Selby, his skull broken by a terrible blow from an ax, and Commander Grenville, after three guns had been broken over his head, were bound and carried off to be executed by the shepherds. The English Consul-General at this city, Mr. Wrench, then appeared, and knowing Turkish, interposed in time to save the lives of the officers. The whole party then returned to the city, where Commander Selby lies in a most critical condition. The affair was the miserable result of a misunderstanding. It shows the folly of any attempt to travel in the country districts without a knowledge of the language, for it illustrates the ferocious passions aroused in the country people when they fancy themselves aggrieved.

It is asserted that a majority was obtained in Iowa for prohibition through the efforts of the women. They organized associations in nearly every county, and by diligent and importunate appeals to individual voters induced a large proportion of those who were languidly opposed to the proposition to support it at the polls.

BRADSTREET has published a comprehensive report of the yield of wheat by States based on replies from 2,000 correspondents. The yield in New England is placed at 1,100,000 bushels less than last year. The Southern States are estimated at 48,000,000 bushels against 40,000,000, and the Middle States at 39,500,000 bushels against $34,500,000 bushels last year. The west reports first quality grain except in portions of Michigan and Northern Ohio, where rain injured the grain while in the shock.

THE decision of General Swaim in the Mason case is hardly likely to reach the President for his concurrence or disapproval. It is understood that the Secretary will, in a day or two, render a decision overruling that of General Swaim, who held that Mason, being off duty at the time he fired the shot at Guitau, was out of the province of the military authorities, and could not be tried by court martial. The Secretary holds, on the other hand, that Mason, being a soldier of the United States, was at all times under orders, and subject to military supervision. On this ground he will hold that General Swaim's decision is at fault.

ROUND trip tickets to Cincinnati during the exposition will be sold for $2.50, good on any of the boats of the White Collar Line, including meals and berth.

The workmen on the temporary bridge over Limestone creek are making good progress. The frame work is all up and it is expected the floor will be laid to-day. It will probably be opened to the public sometime this week.

"PRAY what is lighter than a feather?
Dust, my friend, in dryest weather.
What's lighter than the dust, I pray?
The wind that wafts it far away.
Pray what is lighter than the wind?
The lightness of a woman's mind.
And what is lighter than the last?
Nay, now, my friend you have me fast?"

SAYS the Yeoman:

The beauty of the present law regulating the advertising of property to be sold under decree is exemplified in the case of two pieces of valuable real estate in this city to be sold to the highest bidder—the one on Monday next, and the other postponed until October 16th. We refer to the Capital Hotel and the Frankfort cotton mill. Creditors are interested in these two sales to the amount of fully $50,000, and yet the law is satisfied of a written notice of the sale is tacked up at the courthouse door.

A Brutal Boatman.

Some boys were bathing in the Severn, in England, and when in mid-stream one was seized, with cramp and sank, but returned to the surface twice. He comrades endeavored to rescue him, and appealed to a boatman who was rowing up stream to assist him. The fellow replied that he had something else to do than pull fellows out of the water, and rowed on. The youth was drowned.

How a Woman Would Manage the World.

If I was managing this world I'd do it on the plan of nothing for nothing and no trust; I'd give no man a dollar until he had earned it, and for those who would not work I'd have a plantation and workhouse where they'd be taught industry with a good whip, and pay them for their work when it was done. I'd make all the felons work and pay them; and those who could not be taught to be decent members of society I'd put in a bag with a big stone, take them out in the ocean and drop them overboard. I'd assume that "the meek should inherit the earth," and clear all thieves and murderers, all dangerous classes out of the way.—Mrs. Jane Gray Swisselm.

Knee Breeches.

We devoutly hope that the above style of garment will not become the proper thing in dress. Nature has not specially designated us as the proper figure to fill out a pair of knee breeches, and an all-wise Providence did not select us as the man to wear a close-fitting wardrobe.

This is the only striking difference between ourself and the lamented Washington, deceased.

In the first place, it is a moral impossibility for us to maintain a friendly feeling and a close relation between our knee breeches and stockings. A garter that would be tight at the knee generally slides down over the concave calf and hangs on the instep like the interfering machine that a trotting horse wears. The garter has always been a mystery, a snare, and a delusion to us. It does not match our complexion.

Once we wore knee breeches and long white stockings at a masquerade. Later we took off the mask because it was hot and uncomfortable, and because it was a hollow mockery. When a man has a knee joint like the sheet-iron elbow of an old-fashioned stovepipe and a calf like a lead pencil, it is useless for him to mask his face.

Knee breeches are made for men who are aesthetic, and who walk a good deal. Sedentary men either get too fat or too lean, and they do not create a good impression in this style of garment.

Then, too, the foot should have a symmetrical shape in order to match this kind of apparel. A flat, long foot with abnormal heels and stupendous bunions on it does not fit this peculiar garb. It looks out of place and sui generis, as it were.

Another reason for strong opposition on the part of the press relative to the knee pants is the fact that the ladies, who are now rapidly adopting the modern changes in men's apparel, will, of course, take up with this one. We do not feel, as a husband and father, like enlarging upon this aspect of the matter. We never can write about any subject when we are in pain. We must still this heartache before we can proceed.

To resume: We deem it bad enough for mankind to wear pantaloons that bag at the knee when we sit down, without embracing a garment which will open at the knee like a Soldene smile when we take a chair.

Knee breeches can meet with no cordiality on our part. We cannot hold out our hand in friendly, heart-felt welcome to a wardrobe that makes a slim man look like the memory of a lost cause.—Bill Nye.

It is a truth but too well known, that rashness attends youth, as prudence does old age.

A Senator's Experience.

One day in 1864 Senator Zach Chandler was a passenger on the train from Owosso to Lansing and, strangely enough, no one in the car had any idea of his identity. Two men had the seat behind him, and from talking of war they drifted to politics, and naturally enough Chandler's name became mixed up. Both men were red hot against him, and directly one of them observed:

"It's a wonder to me that some one doesn't shoot the old blood-letter!"

"Oh! he'll get his dose yet, and don't you forget it!" replied the other.

The Senator turned slowly around, took a good look at both, and then said;

"Gentlemen, please speak a little lower—I am Senator Chandler myself."

He thought he had them frozen solid, but he was mistaken. He had scarcely turned his head when one of them leaned forward and replied:

"That's all right, pard, if you can beat the conductor with it; but don't try to stuff us! We met the old chap back in Owosso not an hour ago, waiting to go East, and it cost me $22 cash and a silver watch to call his hand! If you've got a new racket trot it out—we are not giveaways!"

THE immersion of the body in hot dry air sometimes produces loss of weight at the rate of many ounces an hour.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER.

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District, ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan., 20, 1880. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO. Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. j2d.
